CONFERENCES:

Conferences are an excellent opportunity to share your research with a community of researchers and clinicians interested in similar topics. It is also a place to explore the latest research happening in your field of study and to network with other scientists.

CITAC AGM: CLINICIAN INVESTIGATOR TRAINEE ASSOCIATION OF CANADA - ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

The CITAC AGM is an annual conference held in November. This year the conference will be located in Banff, November 8th-10th, 2019. The LiM program will request abstract submission for internal review and will provide funding to send selected student presenters to the conference.

The Clinician Investigator Trainee Association of Canada (CITAC) represents the interests of trainees registered in Canadian clinician investigator and clinician scientist training programs, including MD/MSc, MD/MA, MD/MBA, MD/PhD, CIP (Clinician Investigator Program), Surgeon Scientist and similar programs across Canada. More information about CITAC can be found on their website below:

The mission of the CITAC is to organize and promote activities that support clinician investigator trainees in Canada, with the intention to improve academic and post-graduate career opportunities, expand institutional and public awareness of clinician investigator programs and develop a nationally accessible information database of student and program development. CITAC aims to improve the early-career conditions of clinician investigators in order to expand and advance innovative research initiatives within Canada.

*The LiM program also provides travel awards for conferences other than CITAC! Please contact mdgrad@ucalgary.ca when considering traveling to a conference for more information!
