

Faculty Position

Department of Microbiology & Immunology, College of Graduate Studies

Midwestern University, Glendale, AZ

The Department of Microbiology & Immunology in Glendale, AZ invites applications for a full-time, 12-month, tenure-track faculty position at the rank of Assistant Professor. Applicants must have a Ph.D. or equivalent degree, a minimum of 2 years of post-doctoral training, and a commitment to excellence in teaching and research. Teaching responsibilities will include participation in team-taught microbiology courses offered to osteopathic medical, podiatry, pharmacy, dental, optometry, veterinary, and health science students. Preference will be given to applicants broadly trained in medical and/or veterinary microbiology and/or parasitology. Excellent oral and written communication skills are expected. The successful candidate will be expected to establish and develop a rigorous research program capable of attracting extramural funding. Midwestern University has an active research community with diverse interests that provides ample opportunity for collaborative research. A start-up package, office and research space, core facilities, and technical support will be provided. Qualified and interested applicants should apply online at <http://www.midwestern.edu/faculty-and-staff/employment.xml> In completing the online application, please include a separate cover letter clearly stating the academic rank sought, a CV, a brief statement of teaching interests and philosophy, a summary of research plans, and three references.

Any questions can be addressed to the Search Committee Chair, John A. Hnida, Ph.D., Associate Professor, Department of Microbiology & Immunology at jhnida@midwestern.edu. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Midwestern University is a private, not-for-profit organization that provides graduate and postgraduate education for students in the health sciences. Please visit our website at www.midwestern.edu for more information about our campus and programs.