A Half GA(NT) is available for Fall/Winter 2023/24 within the MDIM graduate program.

Position Requirements:

A graduate student is needed to help evaluate course content, delivery and program learning objectives for the Immunology Graduate Program (MDIM) at the University of Calgary. The graduate program is currently undergoing an internal review in an effort to determine what improvements can be made to advance immunology education at the University of Calgary. We seek to determine the need and feasibility of new course offerings, including a transition to single credit course system to develop a customized and specialized training program. Additionally, we see to determine if current learning objectives are being met and if student needs are adequately addressed.

The successful applicant will be mature, responsible, reliable and able to keep to timelines; preferably in their 2nd year or higher of their Masters or PhD program, with a specialization in Education. Students in other specializations will be considered if they can demonstrate strong background knowledge in the course development and education delivery.

This position will require a graduate student with excellent writing skills (a writing sample may be requested), the ability to provide constructive feedback in the development of education strategies and the ability to evaluate how proposed programs will address the learning objectives.

The role of the GANT will be to support Drs. Nathan Peters, Markus Geuking, and Craig Jenne in the development of the MDIM graduate education program. This may involve:

- Meeting with and surveying the experiences/educational needs of students in the MDIM program
- Discussions with Instructors in the department about expectations for the program
- Iterative course outline development building on the comments/needs/limitations of stakeholders

Interested students please send a statement of interest and CV to:
