CIHR - Health Research Training Platform Pilot Funding Opportunity

Overview

CIHR has launched the Health Research Training Platform \(H RTP\) Pilot Funding Opportunity, aimed at supporting the development of research leaders of tomorrow by equipping trainees and ECRs with the experiences and skills needed to lead high-impact, interdisciplinary health research careers in a rapidly evolving research landscape.

This competition will fund a number of “platforms”— interdisciplinary, inter-jurisdictional, and intersectoral training environments—through which trainees and ECRs will receive comprehensive training from academic, non-academic, and knowledge-user mentors from a variety of disciplines, ultimately providing trainees with a broad-based foundation that can serve as a springboard to independent careers within and outside of academia.

Supported by a number of CIHR Institutes, each application must fall within one of the funding pools targeting:

- AI, Public Health and Equity
- Boys, Men and Masculinities
- Digital Health Solutions for Seniors with Complex Health Needs
- Drug Safety and Effectiveness
- Girls and Women's Health and Wellness
- Human Development, Child and Youth Health
- Improving Health Outcomes through Better Models of Care for Multimorbidity
- Integrating Mental Health Services within Primary and Community Care
- Nutrition, Metabolism and Diabetes
- Stigma Reduction and Life Course Mental Wellness for LGBTQ/2S Populations

- Vascular Cognitive Impairment

RSO's Funding Calendar entry for this competition can be found here.

Award Amount & Duration: Each grant will fund one such training platform for $400,000/year, for up to 6 years ($2.4M total).
