

PRR System

Preview the text to give your mind a structure and framework for what you are about to read. You will also get a jump start on organizing the material

1. Look over the entire text.
2. Make note of titles, subtitles, summaries, diagrams, charts, bolded words/phrases – these are hints about what is important!
3. Create questions using the titles & subtitles

Read actively to engage with the content, which reduces boredom and increases retention.

1. Set realistic time and page goals for your session
2. Divide the reading into sections for better understanding
3. Read the text and answer the questions you developed during your preview.

Recall (or review) the questions you developed during the preview immediately following the reading session.

1. In your own words, either mentally or recite answers to your questions.
2. Take notes or record the answers.
3. Teach someone else.
